The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1- 3, 5-8, 10-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S. patent #6,801,782 to McCrady et al.

McCrady et al disclose in their Abstract that a master radio that will transmit ranging signals to multiple reference radios, which will then respond by transmitting reply ranging signals. Upon reception of the reply ranging signals from the multiple radio handsets (14-20), the master radio (12) determines the range to the reference radio handset from the signal's propagation time. This is the same as applicant's are doing when they claim that the elapsed time is measured from when a 1st radio unit transmits a ranging signal and when that same 1st radio unit receives back a response signal from a 2nd radio unit. Applicant's definition of "propagation time" – page 11 of the spec. is also what McCrady et al are teaching.

McCrady et al further disclose in [0029], a two-way, round-trip ranging signal whereby a master radio transmits outbound ranging pulses to all the reference radios, and then the reference radios respond to the ranging pulses by transmitting reply ranging pulses that indicates the location of the radios and the pulse turnaround time (the time between the reception of the ranging pulse and transmission of the reply ranging pulse). Upon reception of the reply ranging pulse, the master radio determines the signal propagation time, and hence range, by subtracting the turn around time and processing delays from the elapsed time between transmission of the ranging signal/pulse and the time of arrival of the reply ranging pulse. McCrady et al further disclose that "the ranging pulses can be interleaved with voice and data messages," thus meeting applicant's claims' limitation of a wireless handset performing data transmission and performing a distance measurement through ranging pulses and reply ranging pulses.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

Any inquiry concerning this communication should be directed to Creighton H. Smith at telephone number 571/272-7546.
